A brief guide to Photography

To take more interesting photographs, concentrate on basic principles like understanding the "rule of thirds" composition, paying attention to lighting, keeping your subject in focus, considering the background, and experiment with different angles and perspectives. Also, be mindful of the moment and try to capture interesting details expressions.

Key elements to consider:

- Composition:

- Rule of thirds: Divide your frame into thirds horizontally and vertically. Place your subject on one of the intersecting lines, or along the lines, for a balanced composition.

- Leading lines: Use natural lines in the scene to guide the viewer's eye towards your subject.

- Negative space: Leave some empty space around your subject to provide breathing room and focus, or allow moving objects an area to move into.

- Lighting:

- Natural light: Shoot during the golden hour (early morning or late evening) for soft, flattering light.
- Avoid harsh, direct sunlight: Try to shade your subject or shoot at an angle to reduce harsh shadows. This is especially true during the middle of a sunny day.
- Fill flash: Use a flash to fill in shadows on your subject in bright light, but be careful that it doesn't overpower the subject or create red eye.

- Focus:

- Sharp focus: Ensure your main subject is clearly focused, and if the subject has eyes, ensure these are as sharp as possible - this is where the viewer will be drawn to.
- Depth of field: If your camera can, experiment with aperture settings to control how much of the scene is in focus (wide aperture for shallow depth of field, narrow aperture for large depth of field). Some phone cameras can simulate this, check the phone's camera settings.

- Subject and Background:

- Choose your subject: Identify the most interesting element in the scene to focus on.
- Mind the background: Be aware of distracting elements in the background and around the edges of the image. Try to keep it simple.

- Other tips:

- Shoot from different angles: Try taking photos from high, low, or side angles to add variety.
- Capture moments: Look for interesting expressions, actions, or interactions to make your photos more dynamic.
- Try and tell a story: What kind of emotions are you trying to convey?
- Experiment with settings: If your camera has them, learn how to adjust the settings (ISO, shutter speed, aperture) to control exposure and creative effects. Again, if you are using a phone camera, check the phone's camera settings.

- Edit your photos: Use photo editing software to enhance your images by adjusting brightness, contrast, and colours. There are many free pieces of software for use on your phone or PC.
- Have fun: Often if you are enjoying what you are taking pictures of, it is reflected in the image.

What Parents & Educators Need to Know about VIOLENT CONTENT ONLINE

Around 70% of teenagers say they've seen real-life violence on social media in the past year – often from as young as primary school age. Just 6% actively seek it out; most encounter it through group chats or social media algorithms. From fights and pranks to hate speech and graphic media, exposure to violent content online is more widespread – and more harmful – than many adults realise.

WHAT ARE THE RISKS?

MENTAL HEALTH AND TRAUMA

Children and young people report feelings of anxiety, guilt, shame or fear after seeing violent content. For some, these effects may be short term, but for those with existing vulnerabilities or past trauma, the impact can be more severe. Many also feel pressured to 'laugh off' violent content to fit in with friends, even when they find it distressing.

BEHAVIOUR CHANGES

Exposure to online violence can lead to fear and avoidance behaviours – such as skipping school or staying indoors. When children see weapons used in videos, it can heighten their perception that the world is unsafe and, in rare cases, increase the likelihood they'll consider carrying a weapon themselves, such as a knife for protection.

ESCALATION AND PARTICIPATION

Violent videos often go viral quickly. What begins as an online argument can spill into real-world fights – which are sometimes filmed and shared to gain views or status. Some children even admit to sharing or creating violent content themselves to gain attention or boost their reputation.

DESENSITISATION

Older teens may become numb to violent content after years of exposure, admitting they're unlikely to report it. Younger children also tend not to report it – usually because they don't believe anything will be done or because they're afraid of being labelled a 'snitch' by their peers.

HARMFUL IDEOLOGIES

Violent content online may overlap with racist, misogynistic or otherwise extremist ideas. These messages can dehumanise others or glorify violence as a way to gain power, popularity or notoriety. Over time, this can normalise dangerous behaviours and attitudes among impressionable viewers.

DISPROPORTIONATE IMPACT

Not all children are affected equally. Those who are excluded from school, marginalised, disabled or neurodivergent are often more vulnerable to the effects of online violence. It's essential to consider wider context – including home life and access to safe spaces – when thinking about potential harm.

Advice for Parents & Educators

CREATE SUPPORTIVE SPACES

Many children feel adults are too busy or won't understand their experiences online. Take time to build trust through non-judgemental conversations about what they're seeing. If they don't want to speak to you directly, gently signpost towards trusted services they can turn to for support.

KNOW WHAT'S ILLEGAL

Some violent content is simply upsetting, while other examples may be criminal or a safeguarding matter that needs reporting. Help children understand the difference by staying informed about online laws and social media reporting procedures. A useful resource is reportharmfulcontent.com.

AVOID HARSH RESTRICTIONS

Fear of punishment is a major reason young people stay silent about violent content. Try not to overreact or threaten to take away devices. Instead, reassure children that they can speak openly and that asking for help won't get them into trouble.

UNDERSTAND TECH AND TRAUMA

Older children may already know how to block accounts or avoid triggering content. Help younger or more vulnerable children learn these tools and encourage habits that reduce exposure. Just as importantly, teach techniques that help them process distress – building resilience and emotional literacy for both online and offline life.
